Mission Statement

Through an inclusive community of musicians and community members, the Society wishes to excite, engage, and transform diverse audiences with the beauty and power of great music.

Inclusive Community of Musicians

When The Chicago Philharmonic Society reorganized as an egalitarian, musician-governed society in 2012, we developed a statement of values that we continue to live by today.

As a public organization:
- We believe in open, authentic, and trusting relationships between all persons.
- We respect the dignity of each human being and the sincerity of their views.
- We believe in a shared organizational participation by all, and we value inclusiveness over exclusiveness.
- We wish to pursue excellence in everything we do.
- We believe in diversity and pluralism, both as to policy and practice.
- As a charitable organization, we will handle our affairs as fiduciaries, and everything we do will be in the public interest.

Celebrating 30 Years of History

1979-1989: OUR BEGINNINGS
Chicago Philharmonic’s beginnings go back to 1979 when principal musicians from the Chicago Lyric Opera Orchestra formed the Orchestra of Illinois to present and play symphonic performances outside of the opera hall. Although this organization was disbanded in 1988, musicians rallied again that same year to create the Orchestral Society of Illinois in June 1989; the precursor to the Chicago Philharmonic Society.

1989-2004: A NEW ORCHESTRA FOR CHICAGO
After years of musical planning and fundraising, the Society, under the governance of President Temma Abram presented its inaugural concert with Larry Rachleff conducting Symphony II in March of 1991. Maestro Rachleff continued to lead as Orchestra Director for 23 years. During this time, the orchestra had a working board that contained several musicians and engaged Theodore “Ted” Kaitchuck as Personnel Manager from 1991-2013; this role was also held by Terrell Pierce from 2013-2019 and most recently Nathaniel Davis. It was in these years that the orchestra began performing as the Ravinia Festival Orchestra. The Society expanded in 1995 to staff a General Manager, Lynn Juniel, who managed day to day operations, as well as many faithful volunteers, who was then succeeded by Ben Rachleff until 2010.

The Orchestral Society of Illinois appointed James T. Berkenstock, an original founder, as President after the untimely loss of Temma Abrams in 1999 and continued to serve for nine seasons when the orchestra formed its relationship with Salute to Vienna. Under the direction of Maestro Rachleff and Mr. Berkenstock, Symphony II was honored as the Illinois Council of Orchestras Orchestra of the Year in 2002. The orchestra changed its name to the Chicago Philharmonic in late 2004 to better reflect the orchestra’s offerings and celebrate its relevance to the Chicago community. Ted Davis served as President faithfully from 2009-2011 and guided the Society during its economic downturn in its 2008 season where the orchestra experienced reduced programming.

2010-PRESENT: A COMMUNITY OF MUSICIANS
Donna Milanovich began to serve in a part-time capacity as Executive Director starting in 2010 along with Paul R. Judy who came on as an advisor to spearhead formalizing the orchestra’s unique organizational structure. The Society held many research-based meetings about how to develop a type of governance that would be built upon respect for one another fused by a mutual love of music, which began the music household that has become our Chicago Phil family. 2010 also marked the beginning of the Chicago Phil Chamber series, formerly known as Chicago Phil Chamber Players and CP2, where musicians performed self-curated, unique, and intimate performances in Hinsdale, Park Ridge, Mather in Evanston, and Jazz Showcase. Guillermo Bublik served as President in 2011-2012 as the Society was in the midst of developing a structure that would continue its long-time culture of musician leadership and participation.

In 2012, through the tireless efforts of the new Board Chairman Paul R. Judy and first Executive Director Donna Milanovich the orchestra formalized its unique, ground-breaking structure of a musician-governed society supported by active membership of musicians and non-musicians. The Society described itself as a “community of musicians,” where world-class orchestral musicians were encouraged to participate in meaningful leadership roles under the now-proven assumption that this would lead to insurmountable growth. The phrase was coined by Pierre Boulez as the ideal form for a major musical arts organization and endorsed by prominent thinkers including Robert Shaw, Gunther Schuller, Ernest Fleishmann, and Bruce Coppock.

Also in 2012, the Chicago Philharmonic began serving as the official orchestra of the Joffrey Ballet, providing live music for all their performances at the Auditorium Theatre. In July of that same year, the Society adopted the formal name The Chicago Philharmonic Society, which reflects the organization’s structure, increasingly diverse music.
offerings, and varying ensemble sizes from symphonic to chamber. Board Chairman Paul R. Judy was responsible for establishing the Society’s first Endowment Fund. During this time of growth, Scott Speck was named Artistic Director and Principal Conductor in July 2013 to lead nearly 200 of the highest-level classical musicians performing in the Chicago metropolitan area. In the years since the Chicago Philharmonic has consistently won praise from music critics and audiences alike.

In 2015 Tom Manning began serving as Board Chairman, and under his leadership, the Society continued its strong financial growth with 8 consecutive years of an operational surplus. After performing symphonic concerts primarily in the North Shore (Evanston) area, Maestro Speck led the Chicago Philharmonic in its first self-presented concert in the city of Chicago in May 2016, when the orchestra became a resident ensemble at the Harris Theater for Music and Dance in Millennium Park. The Illinois Council of Orchestras has awarded the Chicago Philharmonic “Orchestra of the Year” (2018), “Programming of the Year” (2019), “Community Relations of the Year” (2019), and “Executive Director of the Year” (2020). Likewise, our organizational structure has become a shining example for musicians and orchestras everywhere.

REFLECTING ON 30 YEARS AND BEYOND

The orchestra has performed symphonic concerts in spectacular venues such as Pick-Staiger Hall in Evanston, North Shore Center for the Performing Arts in Skokie, and Harris Theater for Music and Dance in Chicago as well as its chamber series at City Winery Chicago. Over time the Society has forged artistic relationships with the Ravinia Festival, Auditorium Theatre, Salute to Vienna at Symphony Center, Chicago Theatre, and other outstanding arts organizations. The orchestra has also reached concert halls as far as Ferro Pavilion at Lake Geneva in Wisconsin and Koch Hall at the Lincoln Center in New York City.

Chicago Philharmonic has performed under the baton of many well-renowned and celebrated conductors including Zubin Mehta, Jesús López-Cobos, and Sir Andrew Davis. We have performed with artists as diverse as Joshua Bell, the Los Angeles Master Chorale, Lady Gaga, Tony Bennett, and Johnny Mathis. Works performed have ranged from Mendelssohn’s Violin Concerto to Michael Giacchino’s Coco to premiering a new work by Augusta Read Thomas.

The repertoire that our orchestra performs has expanded throughout the years to become more vibrant and diverse, which has given way to a more inclusive concert experience covering the full spectrum of classical music, from Baroque to living composers. Chicago Phil Chamber is drawn from its vast pool of versatile musicians, and the chamber series’ programming furthers the Society’s commitment to performing in front of broad audiences and allowing fresh creative opportunities for musician members.

The Chicago Philharmonic has witnessed tremendous growth across all aspects of the Society including our musician membership, the scope of performances, and expanding our reach to serve people across the greater Chicago community. Since its inception, Chicago Philharmonic has engaged in a range of community engagement initiatives that connect Chicago-area youth to classical music with programs such as ChiPhil AMP (Academy of Music Performance), Side by Side with the Chicago Philharmonic, Families to the Phil, NEXT!, and Spotlight. Additionally, Side by Side with Chicago Philharmonic provides performance opportunities for members of the community.

As we continue to our next chapter, we know that we could not have accomplished all of this if it were not for the support of our extended family of supporters, patrons, donors, student musicians, and funders – PEOPLE LIKE YOU!

Several concerts and programs did not occur due to COVID-19
To Our Patrons, Musicians, Stakeholders, and Friends:

We are pleased to submit this Annual Report of The Chicago Philharmonic Society’s activities during the fiscal year ended June 30, 2020. We celebrated our 30th season during an extraordinary moment in history, as the COVID-19 pandemic and Black Lives Matter protests inspired us to recommit to our mission of diversity, equity, and inclusion, providing wonderful music opportunities for music lovers of all backgrounds.

Through the leadership of Artistic Director and Principal Conductor Scott Speck, Artistic Advisor James Berkenstock, and the musician-majority Artistic Committee, we created our 2019-2020 season: Family in celebration of the family of musicians and music lovers that make our mission possible. In our first concerts, we featured our own outstanding musicians as soloists and worked with prominent artists including living jazz legends, the Marcus Roberts Trio and long-time collaborator, Visceral Dance Chicago. We served in our ninth season as the official orchestra of the Joffrey Ballet and continued to work with esteemed institutions such as Ravinia Festival, Auditorium Theatre, Salute to Vienna, and many others. Chicago Phil Chamber continued their popular brunch series at City Winery Chicago in the West Loop, sharing joyful and accessible concert experiences. Our community engagement programs involved an ever-growing number of students and communities, focusing on Chicago’s west and south side neighborhoods.

When Chicago’s shelter-in-place order was announced in March, we worked quickly to find new ways to serve our communities. We adapted existing community engagement programs like Chi Phil AMP (our in-school mentorship program) and Side by Side with the Chicago Philharmonic to become completely virtual while still providing incredible opportunities to musicians of all ages and backgrounds throughout Chicago. We also created new programs, like PITCHing In 4 U, which provided four free one-on-one lessons to music students. Although we’ve had to rethink our entire model of programming, our commitment to serving the musicians and music lovers of Chicago remains strong.

Our annual report contains a full chronicle of the season’s achievements. Financially, we are proud to report a surplus in Fiscal Year 2020 (FY20), which is our ninth in a row. On behalf of our board, staff, and musicians, we want to thank our patrons, contributors, and volunteers for their tremendous support throughout the past year.

Tom Manning
Chairman

Dear Friends,

The Chicago Philharmonic’s 30th Anniversary Season began as one of our most artistically satisfying, financially successful, and historically significant—and ended as one of our most challenging.

It started with such promise: two world-premiere fanfares, collaborations with Marcus Roberts, Philippe Quint, Amjad Ali Khan, Visceral Dance Chicago, and our own stellar soloists Jeremy Moeller and David Perry.

And after 400 performances together, this was the triumphant finale of our 8-year Joffrey Ballet collaboration — which had expanded our reach in the city, sent us to New York’s Lincoln Center, connected us with such giants as Stravinsky’s Rite of Spring and Britten’s Sinfonia da Requiem, and allowed us to perform Demutsky’s Anna Karenina, the first full-length world premiere in the company’s history.

Then, suddenly, the whole world shut down, and concerts, as we know them, were put on pause. What a shame to lose our final programs of the season—Unity, Home, and Aretha: A Tribute. More than anything else I was sad to lose these opportunities to showcase our brilliant musicians and expand their connection with our growing audience base.

Over the past four months we have worked to reinvent ourselves; what was certain last year now seems long in the past. But if it’s any consolation, every performing arts organization on planet Earth is faced with the exact same challenge. If that isn’t unity, I don’t know what is.

As you know, Donna and our staff have sought out groundbreaking ways to showcase the talents of our musicians. From our virtual Night Out in the Parks concerts to hundreds of free lessons offered online, to our series of popular works recorded individually on each musician’s mobile phone, we have worked to keep the lights of our organization shining brightly within Chicago's consciousness.

One great advantage of our organization is the ability to act nimbly. As we refine the upcoming 2020-2021 season, we are prepared to move in a multitude of directions, diverse in scope but all consistent with our mission. As the concert world slowly reopens, we are ready with Plans A through E. And as we ramp up, the formidable power of the Chicago Phil musicians’ collective experience is ready to rock the world.

All of us at the Chicago Phil wish that this pause hadn’t happened. But since it has, we are doing what it takes to become a stronger organization on the flip side. Whether in person or online, we hope the Chicago Phil is making you proud. I can’t wait to be back together with you again.

All my best,

Scott Speck
Artistic Director
Chicago Philharmonic celebrated its 30th season, Family, by shining a light on the musicians and community members that make up the organization. The versatile pool of talented musicians of Chicago Philharmonic united to inspire music-lovers through moving symphonic concerts, innovative chamber performances, meaningful community engagement programs, and exciting contractual work. The season was sponsored in part by the Illinois Arts Council Agency, the City of Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs and Special Events, and the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation.

AT THE ZOO

August brought a pre-season co-production bringing together Lincoln Park Zoo and Chicago Philharmonic for the first time. We performed an after-hours concert where close to 1,300 attendees enjoyed a spectacular summer evening at one of the city's most iconic locations. Patrons were welcomed to watch the concert in the zoo's main mall or stroll through the zoo grounds while the beautiful symphonic classics were broadcasted on the speakers. This late-night experience had one Chicago Philharmonic patron telling us “I hope you come back to the zoo next year... I loved that concert!”

Playing outside at the zoo was a milestone for us. It was a pleasure for us to be able to share with families (of all kinds) the great riches of classical music. I was especially gratified by the rip-roaring response we got to the Haydn symphony we played – a classical symphony, of all things!

Scott Speck, Artistic Director and Principal Conductor

LIFE: TCHAIKOVSKY 6

The season began with Scott Speck leading the orchestra in Life: Tchaikovsky 6 on Sunday, October 6, at Pick-Staiger Hall in Evanston, featuring Pyotr Tchaikovsky’s Symphony No. 6 (Pathétique) one of the defining sounds of the Romantic period. Accompanying the symphony, were Anna Clyne's cheerful Masquerade and Ferdinand David's Trombone Concertino, featuring Chicago Philharmonic musician member Jeremy Moeller as soloist.

Chicago Philharmonic proudly commemorated its 30th Anniversary by empowering and celebrating composers from around the nation in its first-ever fanfare competition. The competition included two categories one for emerging composers (under 23 years) and one for experienced composers (over 23 years). The winning work for emerging composers, Harrison Collins’ Young Voices, was a portrait and celebration of the youngest generation of American adults. Joining the concert as NEXT? performers were the “Bone Rangers,” a trombone quartet from the Merit School of Music. Audiences and critics reacted positively, with Joe DeRosa from Chicago Onstage calling the concert “a perfect blend of youthful energy, playful intensity, and technical mastery in an exploration of Life.”

REUNION: BEETHOVEN

On Sunday, November 17, Chicago Philharmonic returned to the North Shore Center for the Performing Arts in Skokie with Reunion: Beethoven. It was a celebratory event honoring the great composer’s 250th birthday and the organization’s 30th anniversary. In celebration of the Chicago Philharmonic’s anniversary, the NEXT! addition to the foyer was a display documenting the organization’s history. The foyer was filled with special memorabilia from the Philharmonic’s 30 years allowing patrons to walk down memory lane. The Philharmonic planned to welcome back Maestro Larry Rachleff to lead the concert but was unable due illness. Stepping in to conduct a compelling rendition of Ludwig van Beethoven’s revolutionary Symphony No. 3 (Eroica) was Scott Speck. The first half of the program was Beethoven’s exquisite Violin Concerto in D Major, featuring internationally acclaimed violinist and frequent Chicago Philharmonic Concertmaster David Perry. One concertgoer noted that while “the music which was top-notch as anticipated,” the venue itself enhanced the experience by giving it “a warm, comfortable feel.”

HOLIDAYS: MARCUS ROBERTS TRIO + CHICAGO PHILHARMONIC

Chicago Philharmonic performed at Harris Theater for Music and Dance returning as a resident company on Sunday, December 8, with Holidays: Marcus Roberts Trio + Chicago Philharmonic. The renowned Marcus Roberts jazz trio (Marcus Roberts, piano; Jason Marsalis, drums; Rodney Jordan, bass) joined the orchestra for a re-imagined take on George Gershwin’s Concerto in F with the trio improvising over the orchestra and during cadenzas. Artistic Director and Principal Conductor, Scott Speck found this concert thrilling, since “[it] is thoroughly different and unusual because … we have brought the great jazz pianist Marcus Roberts and his trio. At certain points, the orchestra stops playing and the trio goes off on a flight of fancy.”

Jason Marsalis and Rodney Jordan also joined the orchestra for Duke Ellington and Billy Strayhorn’s jazzy The Nutcracker Suite for a real holiday treat! Completing the holiday-centered program was Pyotr Tchaikovsky’s December movement of The Seasons. As part of the Spotlight community engagement program, five exceptional young musicians joined the orchestra on stage to perform Samuel Coleridge-Taylor’s Christmas Overture and Pyotr Tchaikovsky’s December from The Seasons. Those same five students also performed solo excerpts in the foyer before the concert through the NEXT! program.

PROMISE: MOZART, PÄRT, BACEWICZ, DVOŘÁK

On Sunday, March 1, Chicago Philharmonic was welcomed back at the North Shore Center for the Performing Arts with Promise: Mozart, Pärt, Bacewicz, Dvořák. Led by Scott Speck, the strings-only chamber orchestra explored the turning points of exceptional composers spanning hundreds of years, including Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart’s Divertimento in D Major, Antonín Dvořák’s Serenade for Strings, and Polish composer Grażyna Bacewicz’s magnum opus, Concerto for Strings, which led her to international acclaim. Joining the orchestra on stage for the fourth time was Visceral Dance Chicago for a collaborative effort with original choreography by Nick Pupillo set to Arvo Pärt’s meditative Trisagion. The collaboration highlighted the versatility and skill of Chicago Philharmonic’s musicians, and as writer Lauren Warnecke of See Chicago Dance noted, “the musician-led society is known for its deep well of musicians, who are skilled in a variety of orchestral genres, and have become a go-to for dance collaborations.” Audiences were also delighted by the addition of a young and talented piano trio from New Music School, who performed in the foyer before the concert and during intermission through the NEXT! program.
Chicago Philharmonic’s unique chamber music ensembles, which perform as Chicago Phil Chamber, encourage musician members to work together programming and performing classic chamber works. Performing intimate music experiences with award-winning wine plus brunch for an unforgettable time at City Winery Chicago, located in Chicago’s West Loop neighborhood. Audience members continue to enjoy our chamber concerts for the sixth year where patrons and musicians alike are able to enjoy classical music in a relaxed setting.

The series began with Queens of Jazz on October 27. City Winery was packed full of audience members charmed by singer Adrienne Walker, making her triumphant return to Chicago from her starring role as Nala in Broadway The Lion King, who was joined by a Chicago Phil Chamber string quartet. The musicians (Carmen Kassinger, violin; Lisa Fako, violin; Monica Reilly, viola; Margaret Daly, cello) presented classic tunes from the golden age made famous by Ella Fitzgerald, Judy Garland, Sarah Vaughan, and the great ladies of jazz. The series continued on November 24 with Cabernet, Clarinet, and Strings, featuring a Chicago Phil Chamber clarinet quintet (Gene Collerd, clarinet; Jennifer Cappelli, violin; Pauli Ewing, violin; Claudia Lasareff-Minonoff, viola; and Paula Kosower, cello). Audiences took a moment out of the busy fall season to enjoy Antonín Dvořák’s romantic Sonatina for Clarinet and String Quartet and Carl Maria von Weber’s Clarinet Quintet, a beloved staple of chamber music.

Chamber music lovers decked the halls on December 22 with the popular concert Merry and Bright! with Chicago Phil Brass. Brass quintet members (Matthew Lee, trumpet; David Immon, trumpet; Greg Flint, horn; Reed Capshaw, trombone; Charles Schuchat, tuba) embraced the holiday season with classic carols, including Joy to the World, The Holly and the Ivy, Carol of the Bells, and Sleigh Ride. The spring series began on February 16 with In the Realm of Senses, a multi-sensory performance of Mussorgsky’s Pictures at an Exhibition and Ravel’s Sonata for Violin and Cello featuring Jeff Yang, violin; Matthew Agnew, cello; and Lyudmila Lakisova, piano. Artists of all mediums collaborated to create the final show, including John Gaudette, lithographs; Maja Bosen, art sculpture; Galina Shevchenko, visual art; and Christophe Laudamiel, scent sculpture.

Excellent musicianship! I liked how the musicians interacted with the crowd and taught us about the pieces of music. It made it a more intimate environment, which is perfect for the setting of City Winery.

JOFFREY BALLET

Chicago Philharmonic’s ninth and final season as the official orchestra of The Joffrey Ballet opened on October 16 with a Chicago premiere of Jane Eyre, adapted from the classic Charlotte Brontë novel by choreographer Cathy Marston. The score by composer Philip Feeney wove together Feeney’s works with those of Fanny Mendelssohn. On November 30, The Joffrey Ballet opened its fifth year of Christopher Wheeldon’s The Nutcracker with original choreography and production that debuted to popular and critical acclaim in 2016. Chicago Philharmonic played Pyotr Tchaikovsky’s classic score in the pit and onstage for thirty performances. Chicago Philharmonic tackled technical pieces by Igor Stravinsky as part of The Joffrey Ballet’s mixed-rep program, The Times Are Racing on February 12. The program featured Chicago premieres of Justin Peck’s The Times Are Racing and Itzik Galili’s The Sofa and Mono Lisa. Also included were Stephanie Martinez’s Bliss!, set to Igor Stravinsky’s Dumbarton Oaks Concerto and Christopher Wheeldon’s Commedia, set to Stravinsky’s Pulcinella Suite.

CONTRACTUAL ENGAGEMENTS

The 2019-2020 contractual partnerships continued, as the orchestra collaborated with new arts organizations and maintained strong relationships with longstanding partnerships. In Summer 2019, Chicago Philharmonic again for more than 26 years performed at Ravinia Festival. The Philharmonic provided symphonic accompaniment to performances with Marin Alsop, Sarah MacLachlan, Weird Al, and a screening of Disney Pixar’s Coco, led by Thiago Tiberio. The Philharmonic also returned to Lake Geneva, Wisconsin performing with U.K.’s Russell Watson for Music By the Lake at Ferro Pavilion programmed by Aurora University. Waltzing into 2020, Imre Kollár conducted the Philharmonic for Salute to Vienna at Symphony Center, and our Chi Phil Chamber string quartet celebrated love and The Beatles at Big Foot Fine Arts Foundation in Walworth, Wisconsin this February.

Halloween celebrations were especially spooky with the orchestra’s second year of Auditorium Theatre’s popular live screenings of Tim Burton’s The Nightmare Before Christmas, and provided orchestral support for ATRU’s Gala with Chicago Celebrates Sondheim! production in November. The orchestra, along with guest conductor Emanuele Andrizzi, also performed for the second year in a row at Deloitte’s Associate Director Milestone Program, where Deloitte’s incoming class of new associate directors observed a rehearsal and performance of Bela Bartok’s Romanian Folk Dances, followed by an interactive Q&A session with the conductor and orchestra. Chicago Philharmonic has also garnered praise for the orchestra’s high-level engagements with internationally acclaimed ballet companies.

Community Engagement Programs

Chicago Philharmonic expanded its Academy of Music Performance (Chi Phil AMP) programs, thanks to generous support from US Bank, which helps to develop well-rounded student musicians. In addition to the organization’s signature community engagement program, Side by Side with the Chicago Philharmonic, Chicago Philharmonic saw the successful continuation of the Families to the Phil, NEXT!, Spotlight, and summer internship programs. Guiding these expansions was the organization’s first-ever full-time Community Engagement Manager. While the pandemic affected our overall numbers of participation, the organization rose to the challenge of adapting its programs virtually.
SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE CHICAGO PHILHARMONIC

In partnership with the Chicago Park District and Mayor Lori Lightfoot’s Night Out in the Parks initiative, Chicago Philharmonic presented its sixth year of side-by-side symphonic concerts in Chicago parks engaging Chicago’s west, south, and north side neighborhoods. In 2019, the series included concerts at six different parks with five returning (Humboldt Park Boathouse, Ping Tom Memorial Park, Columbus Park Refectory, Hamilton Park, South Shore Cultural Center) and one new (Pottawattomie Park). For each concert, music students and community musicians of all ages brought their instruments and collaborated with the Chicago Philharmonic in rehearsing and performing a free, public concert. Side by Side with the Chicago Philharmonic was made possible by the Chicago Park District, U.S. Bank, the Illinois Arts Council Agency, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the Music Performance Trust Fund.

The orchestra was led by Scott Speck and guest conductors Emanuele Andrizzi and Kellen Gray. Summer 2019’s concert repertoire was a celebration and reflection of each of Chicago’s vibrant cultural neighborhoods. Highlights include works by Mexican composer Arturo Márquez (representing Pilsen), Italian composer Pietro Mascagni (Little Italy), African American composer William Grant Still (representing Chicago’s African American community), Polish composer Frédéric Chopin (representing Chicago’s Polish community), and a traditional Chinese piece Dance of the Golden Snake (representing Chicago’s Chinese Community). On December 1, we returned to the South Shore Cultural Center for our ever-popular holiday concert bringing yuletide symphonic classics to the community.

CHI PHIL AMP (ACADEMY OF MUSIC PERFORMANCE)

2019-2020 marked the sixth year of Chi Phil AMP, a program in which Chicago Philharmonic musicians mentor band and orchestra students through masterclasses, side-by-side rehearsals, and playing with students in their school orchestra or band concerts. These meaningful interactions with professional musicians effectively cultivate students’ music skills and advance overall development and success in school. Support for AMP was provided in part by US Bank, the Charles and M.R. Shapiro Foundation, the Farny B. Wurlitzer Foundation Fund, and Mathew Lucante Violins, LLC in addition to contributions from participating schools. Full support for AMP at Benito Juarez Community Academy was provided by Judy Guitelman, Dan Epstein, and the Dan J. Epstein Family Foundation.

The Chicago Philharmonic continued its partnership with two Chicago Public Schools on the west side for its 4th year, UIC College Prep and Chicago Bulls College Prep, both Noble Network schools. The AMP program also returned for its 6th year at Old Orchard Junior High School, AMP’s first and flagship partner. This past spring, four programs were scheduled to run at Thomas Kelly High School in Brighton Park, Crane Medical Prep High School on the Near West Side, Benito Juarez Community Academy in Pilsen, and Victoria Soto High School on the Southwest Side. Due to the pandemic, all four programs were transferred to a digital format. We worked diligently with our school partners to present the program virtually, and it was an incredible transformation by our musicians and staff converting AMP into a virtual program in just a matter of days. Bravo to our AMP mentors for stepping in and stepping up for Chicago’s youth!

INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

For the Chicago Philharmonic’s 2020 Summer interns, this was a summer unlike any other! This year’s paid, 6-week internship was adapted to be completely virtual. Illinois Arts Council Summer Youth Employment in the Arts grant contribution made it possible to bring four bright young students from Walter Payton College Preparatory High School (Brandon Cheng), Northside College Preparatory (Elizabeth Park), Lindblom Math and Science Academy (Kayla Venson), and Mansueto High School (Yasmin Vivian).
INTERNSHIP PROGRAM CONTINUED

Chicago Phil’s interns worked as a team with daily group projects like creating a system for updating musician headshot and bio, organizing composer demographics from our past concerts, and presenting ideas on community engagement. While reflecting on their time with the Philharmonic, all of the interns agreed that the most exciting part of their internships has been learning from Artistic Director and Principal Conductor Scott Speck during their three listening parties and concert lectures. They learned about Antonín Dvořák’s Symphony No. 9 (From the New World), Arturo Marquez’s “Leyenda de Miliano” (Legend of Emiliano), and William Grant Still’s Symphony No.1 (Afro-American Symphony). What a rare treat to have such close, personal time with a great American conductor!*

*Includes writing contributions and collage from Kayla Venson, Marketing Intern

“The internship as a whole helped prepare me in adjusting to the new virtual life and it really fueled my self-motivation which I felt I was lacking during this pandemic.”

FAMILIES TO THE PHIL

For nine seasons, Chicago Philharmonic Families to the Phil has provided students the opportunity to attend symphonic subscription concerts with their family members free of charge. In the 2019-2020 season, Chicago Philharmonic underwrote 545 tickets to four concerts before the pandemic began for families from overlooked communities, thanks in part to support from the Albany Bank and Trust Company, N.A.; the Robert B. Kyts and Jadwiga Roguska-Kyts, M.D. Foundation; and the Pauls Foundation.

Through the Families to the Phil program, 27 tickets were provided for free to visually impaired and blind young people and their families from Vision Parents Empowered of Chicagoland. The students and families also met with renowned pianist Marcus Roberts, winner of the Helen Keller Award for Personal Achievement. This was a unique opportunity for many of the students, and as one parent said, “It was many of our children’s first time attending a CPO (or any orchestra) concert. We can’t wait to come back!”

NEXT!

The Chicago Philharmonic established NEXT! in 2011 to give up-and-coming musicians the chance to be heard by large, diverse audiences by being showcased in the foyer before symphonic concerts. In 2019-2020, Chicago Philharmonic welcomed the student trombone quartet from Merit School of Music, the “Bone Rangers”, a young harpist from the Chicago Musical Pathways Initiative, and a talented young piano trio from New Music School, and students from Chicago Philharmonic’s Spotlight program performing solo repertoire representing Chicago Youth Symphony Orchestra, Midwest Young Artists, and Music Institute of Chicago.

SPOTLIGHT

Spotlight provides professional orchestral opportunities to exceptionally talented young music students. Five selected students have the rare and prestigious opportunity to play on one major work on stage with the Chicago Philharmonic in a subscription concert. Before the concert, Chicago Philharmonic musicians work with these students as coaches and mentors during the rehearsal process. During the concert Holidays: Marcus Roberts Trio, the following young musicians were part of the orchestra for the performance of Samuel Coleridge-Taylor’s Christmas Overture and Pyotr Tchaikovsky’s December from The Seasons: Hila Dahari, violin; Isabel Chen, violin; Bella Kim, viola; Ava Kassinger, cello; and Andrew Hungness, bass.
The Chicago Philharmonic Society’s Board of Directors, Executive Administration, and Artistic Leadership have taken the global pandemic caused by COVID-19 very seriously. Decisions about concerts prioritized the health of our patrons, musicians, guest artists, staff, and our affiliated venues. This situation impacted Chicago Philharmonic’s symphonic and chamber concerts as well as our planned contractual engagements. Executive Director Donna Milanovich shares, “I am so proud of the efforts of the staff, musicians, board, and those we serve during this time of COVID. We thank all of you for meeting the challenges and realities of the new normal with creativity and grace.”

Three symphonic concerts were cancelled or postponed. Unity: Amjad Ali Khan, which was originally scheduled for April 5, 2020, was canceled and will likely be rescheduled in the future. The program featured Indian classical music master and sarod virtuoso Amjad Ali Khan in his own concerto Samaagam: A Concerto for Sarod, Concertante Group and String Orchestra, as well as Kayla’s Aria from the opera Taking Up Serpents by living composer Kamala Sankaram, and Shostakovich’s Chamber Symphony in C Minor. Also anticipated to be rescheduled is the concert Home: Brahms 3, featuring violinist Philippe Quint in Erich Wolfgang Korngold’s Violin Concerto, originally scheduled for May 10, 2020. This concert was set to feature Brahms’ Symphony No. 3, Li Huanzhi’s Spring Festival Overture, and the world premiere of Nicholas Hubbell’s Chicago Fanfare, which was the winner of the experienced composers (over 23 years) category from our 30th Anniversary Fanfare Competition. Aretha: A Tribute, featuring Broadway star Capathia Jenkins and three-time Grammy Award nominee Ryan Shaw will likely be rescheduled in the 2020-21 season.

Two additional chamber music concerts at City Winery Chicago were rescheduled for the 2020-21 season: Strings, Syrah, & Sisterhood (an all-women string quartet performing the works of living women composers Jessie Montgomery, Caroline Shaw, and Gabriela Lena Frank) and Na Zdraví! To Winds and Wine (a woodwind quintet celebration of Chicago Czech culture with works by Malcolm Arnold, Anton Reicha, and a Chicago premiere of Jacob Beranek’s Wind Quintet). Several contractual engagements were canceled or postponed: American Ballet Theatre at Auditorium Theatre (originally scheduled for March 2020), Joffrey Ballet’s Don Quixote (originally scheduled for April-May 2020), Tanztheater Wuppertal at Harris Theater (originally scheduled for April-May 2020), and Bolshoi Ballet’s Swan Lake at Auditorium Theatre (originally scheduled for June 2020) as well as with Johnny Mathis at Four Winds Casino.

In the midst of the pandemic, The Chicago Philharmonic Society provided hope with our PITCHing In campaign and swiftly forming a Special Musician Assistance Fund, which provided support to our musician members who rely on a variety of sources to support their livelihoods, but many heavily rely on performing live for a majority of their income. Garnering community support through a robust social media campaign from varied content: three playlists curated by Chicago Phil, nine weekly videos from Scott Speck including interviews with two of the Philharmonic’s musician members, six shared videos from our musicians. The social media campaign engaged Chicago Phil patrons in a whole new way; Scott Speck and guest Erica Anderson’s conversation was “engaging and informative” with one Facebook follower wishing “Happy reed making!” Through the fundraising efforts of the board, staff and generous patrons, the Special Musician Assistance Fund Committee was able to raise and distribute $7,775 to 14 of our member musicians in need with additional support raised and attributed in the following fiscal year.

All of the below changes to digital programming this spring and summer, were made possible by the CARES Act Paycheck Protection Program loan received in May 2020. To date, the Chicago Philharmonic has received $449,697 from the Paycheck Protection Program, and an additional $50,000 in COVID relief from the National Endowment for the Arts. Not only did this forgivable loan afford us the opportunity to continue payment to our musicians and staff, helping to support the 376 musicians that were hired last season, and the funds also went to creating a new program for our musicians and patrons called PITCHing In 4U. In our PITCHing In 4U program, 121 individuals ranging from the age of 10 to over 65 received four free lessons from Chicago Philharmonic musician members. Participants included long-time Chicago Philharmonic patrons with a music background, students from our AMP school partners, past Side by Side participants, and more. Participants were excited for this rare and thrilling opportunity for Chicagoans to have one on one time with professional musicians. Over fifty musicians were compensated for a cumulative 240 hours of free and accessible virtual music lessons. We also used funds from the Paycheck Protection Program to create a series of Cell Phone Symphonies and to pay musicians for a broadcast of our 2019 performance of Scheherazade on WFMT and the rights to create a limited pressing CD release of the 2017 recording of the world premiere of Augusta Read Thomas’ Sonorous Earth. We were also able to compensate musicians who had been previously hired for canceled contractual and symphonic work that would have occurred between May 1 and June 25, 2020.
A Community of Musicians and Musician Governance

Philharmonic Board members Robert Everson and Duffie Adelson serving as Vice-Chairs. Joining the board in FY20 was Lynne McDonough, who previously worked in development for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and San Francisco Symphony. “I am very much looking forward to getting more involved with the work of the Chicago Philharmonic” remarked McDonough about beginning her tenure with the Philharmonic. The board held four meetings and numerous committee meetings during the year.

Management and Staff
Donna Milanovich completed her twenty-fourth year as a member of the Society and entered her tenth year as Executive Director in May 2020. Donna is responsible for the organization’s general operations, including concert planning, performance coordination, patron and donor development, board committee support, and the oversight of Chicago Philharmonic’s administration of seven full-time employees and two part-time employees. In honor of her remarkable service, vision, and dedication, Donna was awarded the 2020 Executive Director of the Year by the Illinois Arts Council Orchestra.

Although The Chicago Philharmonic Society was founded in 1989, it adopted an egalitarian structure in 2012, embracing the unique practice of organizational governance led by a musician majority at every level of management. Operated by collective leadership and consensus decision making, we draw guidance from The Board of Directors and The Musicians Advisory Council, composed of 35 musician members serving as a sounding board for musicians to share feedback, along with our Executive Committee and eight board-established committees. Our model establishes leadership roles for those directly impacted by decisions. The committees include: the Artistic Programming and Policies Committee which selects programming; the Personnel Committee which selects musicians for performing ensembles; Patron Services Committee who handle the development of strategies to promote audience attendance and create and maintain relationships with our communities and the patrons we serve; the Development and Endowment Committee which oversees long-term strategies for individual giving, securing grants and other institutional sources of funding; our Financial Services Committee which maintains the financial operations of the organization; the Chamber Music Programming and Policies Committee which selects artists and programs for the Chicago Phil Chamber Players; the newly formed Special Musician Assistance Fund Committee which was created in response to Covid and musicians needs; and importantly our Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Committee to improve accessibility, diversity, and inclusivity in all areas of the organization. Because our structure is at the forefront of orchestral governance, we have accountability to push towards equity and inclusion in the arts community’s evolving emphasis on racial and gender equality and representation. And with this uncommon structure, we have frequent reviews of inequitable organizational structures and policies and adjust our procedures to the benefit of all of our constituents.

Board of Directors
The Chicago Philharmonic Society was served by twenty-four members of the Board of Directors, including thirteen musician members. During FY20, Thomas Manning served as the Chairman of the Board, with Chicago

Early in the fiscal year, we welcomed three new full-time employees Eryn MacNeil, Development Manager; Rhapsody Snyder, Community Engagement and Executive Support Manager; and Kelly Wren, Marketing and Communications Manager with a third new member hired in December Ana Santamaria, Operations Assistant. Nathaniel Davis, Artistic Operations Coordinator and Personnel Manager, managed Ana Santamaria along with concert logistics and artistic personnel. Transitioning from part-time to full-time allowed Rhapsody Snyder to support all aspects of the organization’s six-part Community Engagement Program and provided executive assistance to Donna Milanovich. Eryn MacNeil drove the Philharmonic’s giving campaigns and grant applications in her new role. Kelly Wren oversaw Lydia Penningroth, Sales and Communications Coordinator, and together they supported patron services and marketing campaigns for our self-presented concerts. Several part-time employees supported the day-to-day operations, including Lisa Caradonna, Accountant; Carlos Diaz, Production Assistant; Nicholas Koo, Production Assistant; Danielle Ray, Music Librarian. We are also thankful to the various support staff and interns like Jiana Avilia, Magali Coronado, Jamaal Crowder, Elaina Huang, Nicholas Koo, Jing Wen Chui, and Catherine Zhu. We would be remiss to not mention two dedicated employees who left their full-time positions but continued to support as consultants who are Cassandra Kirkpatrick and Terrell Pierce.

The condensed Financial Statements of the Chicago Philharmonic Society for the Fiscal Year ended June 30, 2020, are shown below. As indicated, our activities resulted in a surplus, continuing the long-term trend of positive increases in net assets.

The reputation of the Chicago Philharmonic as a high-level musical arts organization continues to grow as the premier contract orchestra in the Chicago area. In the past year, our list of collaborators has included the Joffrey Ballet, Harris Theater for Music and Dance, Salute to Vienna, Auditorium Theatre, Ravinia Festival, and Music By the Lake.

The Society also continues to attract the attention of increasingly high profile funders, including US Bank, Allstate, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Illinois Arts Council Agency, the Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs and Special Events, among others.

Our Families to the Phil program was funded directly by sponsors for the third year, and our Chicago Phil AMP (Academy of Music Performance) program was expanded to increase the program in size from four schools to seven, due to generous grant funding from US Bank.

Our residency at Harris Theater provided fresh opportunities to court new patrons in downtown Chicago. The orchestra also continued to perform at North Shore Center for the Performing Arts in Skokie and Pick-Staiger Concert Hall in Evanston, further developing our presence in the North Shore’s cultural scene. The Chicago Phil Chamber Players drew audiences to City Winery in Chicago’s West Loop neighborhood, and we performed for the first time at the Lincoln Park Zoo.

The organization’s response to the changing needs of our musicians was the addition of the Special Musician Assistance Fund (SMAF), developed to help aid our musicians in the wake of COVID-19, which raised $7,775 and was distributed to 14 musicians. Additionally, the Chicago Philharmonic Society was the recipient of a forgivable Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) loan in the amount of $415,922, which, along with very generous individual contributions, led to an increase in contributions and grants of 68% over FY19. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Chicago Philharmonic was able to only complete four of seven scheduled concerts, which led to a drop in admissions of 41%. Overall, contractual work decreased by 32%, also due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Overall, revenue for FY20 decreased by 12%.

Program services expenses totaled $2,208,756, constituting 91% of the Society’s total expenses. Management and general expenses totaled $112,511, and fundraising expenses were $96,521, representing 5% and 4% of the total expense, respectively.

The Statement of Activities shows an overall surplus of $1,908, and the Society’s net assets (which reflects the endowment fund) increased to $529,853 as of June 30, 2020. The financial statements of the Society for Fiscal 2020 have been audited by Ostrow, Reisin, Berk & Abrams, Ltd, CPAs. These documents are posted on the Society’s website and available on request.
